

We had the first storm of the rainy season this afternoon. A wonderful, thunderous soaker. It filled our courtyard. The kids think I should waterproof the courtyard and let it become a swimming pool.

We have damage over on the campus. Several roof sections off the grade 12 classrooms, the girls' dorms and the college computer lab. I am grateful that flying metal didn't cut anybody in half.

